The Faculty Legal Alternatives Committee shall offer information and counselling to the students of the University of Maryland regarding legal alternatives to military service. Every member of this Committee must be a member of the University of Maryland Faculty.

This information and counselling shall be available to every student, regardless of his political opinions, religious beliefs, class standing, or year. The student who wishes to use the services of the Committee will be advised of the possibilities, within the Military Selective Service Act of 1967 and relevant court decisions, for conscientious objection to military service and for occupational deferment, as well as other alternatives which are available to the individual faced with the draft. He will also be counseled on how to obtain legal and other assistance, if that should be necessary. Each student will be counseled to decide his course in accordance with his conscience.
