WALLACE

LEXINGTON, KY. (INS)—George Wallace, a man who has contributed greatly to the political polarization of this country, visited the University of Ky. recently and was greeted by a complete reversal of the polar stereotypes.

While eight straight-looking anti-Wallace pickets paraded and a number of neatly-attired members of a campus action group passed out anti-Wallace leaflets, some 35 scroungy, bearded, sanded, long-haired "hippies" (as they called themselves) demonstrated for nearly two hours in support of the former Alabama governor.

Carrying placards reading "Turn on with Wallace," "Keep America Beautiful, Get a Haircut!" "Sock it to us, George!" "America, Love it or leave it!" "Hippies for Wallace," and shouting slogans like "Law and Order Now!" and "We're for Po-leece Power," the group was curiously received.

Some of the crowd of 10,000 who turned out to hear Wallace were able to perceive the tongues in the Hippies' cheeks. But many were unable to cope with the reversal of Stereotypes.

After watching the hippies parade for several minutes, one elderly woman asked uncertainly, "They ARE hippies, aren't they?"

Another said, "If someone like that is for Wallace, I don't know if I'm supporting the right man or not."

Even Wallace was somewhat bewildered by the group when they gained his attention during his oratory. It was a typical Wallace speech, complete with catch-all phrases, Wallace witticisms and emotional appeals to the working man.

"As the atmosphere grew tense, as the fervor spread in the crowd, the hippies came through to lighten the mood. They started to chant: "Sock it to 'em, George, sock it to 'em, George."

Wallace, thinking the shouts came from one of the usual groups of adversaries who attend his speeches, pulled out several patented retorts from his repertoire: "All right, you're not goin' to get promoted to the second grade. . .you people don't know how many votes you get me each time you . . ."

Then, pointing toward the group which was sitting high in the balcony, he said, "You need a haircut," though he was too far away to see how correct he was. The hippie group began chanting even louder—"We want Wallace!"

Wallace hesitated, took a step backwards, approached the mike again and said, "Oh, I think they're for us up there," which brought wild applause from the group. The little man with the slick-backed hair had been goofed on and didn't know it.

Later at the airport, when asked about the hippies he said: "If they're really for me, I'd be glad to have them."

PINK GRASS

Clouds of green raining flowers;
Redlights flash through trash;
Clear blue sweat smells pure;
Fallen satans vrist to die again;
Black veil of birth worn away
With the introduction of truth;
Sinister love and peace prevail;
Gray teeth gnaw at your soul
As if to purify you underneath;
A fresh storm dirties your feet.
Oceans of marigolds cling to your nose.
Dive up into your imagination
And push the world into a hole,
Pant the flower of love deep
Into the ear of the non-believer;
Search out what it means to breath.
Dig up the minds of the dead,
The pink grass grows up
To tickle your soul lovingly;
And whisper in your eyes
A pure picture of space.
All the colors will fill you
Through your navel.
And bloat you with divinty,
Sniff the sounds of time
With belief of a new thought.
Tender fingers fondle you on
The trip through time eternal,
Easy and as sure as death
The sensation of Love.

WANTED

Due to untimely death of the director of security at the age of 104, applications for this position are now being accepted.

REQUIREMENTS:

1. Minimum age, 65
2. American Independent Party card.
3. Bifocals
4. No high school education necessary.
5. Mayor Daley Fan Club card.
6. A little knowledge of tear gas, billy-clubs, and Mace.
7. A white sheet.
8. Hatred of beards, long hair, and beads.

Apply Room 5, Student Personnel Building.

In the beginning was darkness, and the Administration said "Let there be darkness," and the darkness enveloped the Administration. (At least that's what I have been told.)

Now the Administration has shown the students a ray of light. In its recent decision to permit student demonstrations "... under the sponsorship of an approved student organization." (This quote, as others in this article, is taken directly from the VPI "Procedures to be Observed in the Event Disruptive Activities Develop on Campus")

There is just one hangup; once you find an approved student organization desiring to demonstrate, it is apt to be immediately disapproved. Suppose now, however, that somehow a demonstration was sponsored under the supervision of the Vice-President for Student Affairs. You would now be free to demonstrate in such a manner as the Vice-President would deem proper and (need I add) ineffective. At the first sign of effective student action, "The Vice-President... would advise the director of Security, who would immediately assume responsibility." The Vice-President would thereby transfer authority to an Administration stooge and clean his hands of student blood. The Director (by the way, who is this guy?) "would not authorize the use of tear-gas... or other weapons unless the situation resulted in significant destruction." Since he is in charge, the Director should be able to determine what constitutes "significant destruction," and act with the minimum force necessary.

Until a few weeks ago, these assumptions may have been correct, but then on a day in the later part of August, a prominent civilian leader authorized his police to take any actions necessary to preserve "peace?"

The city was Chicago and the civilian leader Mayor Daley. In the ensuing nightmare the police, far exceeding the requirements of the situation, acted brutally in a manner recalling the Nazi stormtroopers of another twisted society.

So now you say that something like that could not possibly happen here. This is America, land of the free, home of the brave. It couldn't happen here, but it did. Kinda makes you think.

In the words of one angry man, "There is a new sun, rising up angry in the sky."

PEACE AND FREEDOM

IN DEFENSE OF COLUMBIA

To those that charge the SDS with fermenting and causing riots I might ask the question, "How?"

Even with your complacent and well trained attitudes you must have noticed time and time again in the press that the Columbia strikers' claims were legitimate but that they should return to the democratic process. What "process?" If you examine the record you will find that the events at Columbia were preceeded by a series of petitions and pleas against the actions that were being taken by the university. The students' demands were just, but there was no democratic process. There fore the students took direct and radical action which was effective. It brought into national view the true nature of Columbia as a slumlord and complicit criminal of war. And the bloodied heads of its students attested the brutal nature of the well-oiled machine that tolerated no interference with its production of eggs for corporate consumption.

Ask yourself this; if Tech took on a task such as forcing poor farmers off their land in order to expand its land holdings, how could the students "democratically" halt this action? Face it, Mr. Charley has you will controlled and trained. Trained not to question, to step out of line, or to spit sideways without great moral terror. You could not exercise your democratic rights even if the university would condescend to your action. Ask yourself why the black students of this university consist of less than one per cent of all students when Virginia purports to offer equal educational opportunities. There are enough to deep the federal funds coming (See, we got some Negroes) but a far cry from proportional representation of the population. How can this be changed through the democratic method? Deen lacy even refuses to inform student inquirers as to how many Negroes there are on campus; he says he doesn't know. Yet he happened to know that five black students were planning to live on the same hall together and he decided that this should not be "allowed," supposedly because it would be thought they were purposefully segregated.

How can the students demand that the school stop research on war projects? The university profits from this war while we reverently set up plaques to the Viet Nam dead in the War Memorial Chapel (and go on training more cannon fodder). I wonder if those dead soldiers knew that their deaths paid for new laboratories and better ways to kill people?

There is violence from the oppressed that for one reason or another step out and meet the calculated violence of the institution they oppose. As long as any governing system refuses to admit the sovereign rights of the individuals involved in its rulings, it emasculates them. It denies them their humanity and dignity of self. Those who have no democratic process face the moral dilemma of either attempting to stop the machine of allowing it to progress unhampered. These people are restored as human beings when they place themselves in a position where the institution is forced to remove them by using all the violence normally veiled by legal processes of eviction, harassment, and suspension.

The students at Columbia asserted their basic human right to stop a machine that was a creation of people that now destroyed them. These students damned their degrees and the academic hypocrisy, realizing that they were less than human if their bodies remained silent to racism and war.

Remember this. Revolutions are made by rulers. The universities have ruled over complacent minds, but the utter hypocrisy of our present national stands with regard to the poor, the black, and the Viet Kamese has led students to resist nationally and locally the "organized irresponsibility" of institutions that have forgotten the humanity of their origins. SDS has merely said that where you are not allowed to speak as a citizen and human being, where you are a part of an institution that does not derive its power from the people and humanity and in fact deliberately disregards the people, you are required in conscience to speak with your body. The administration knows full well its vested interest in the corporate state. Surely its student apologists are capable of learning. T.S.

COLLOQUY IN BLUE

At times, my only salvation
In a world of suggested cubicles
Is my ever-active mind.
To be able to cling, with
Both arms, to a dream life.
To be able to embrace
Infinity with my eyes.

I lay on my back in a
Thick field of heavenly haze.
And I tried to stare down
One particular cloud.
The way it hovered, then soared,
and twisted hypnotized me.
From it I saw a big blue Blob
Descend like a child at birth.
Coming at my face very fast,
It seemed like my requiem.
It stopped right at my nose
Then glistened, then christened
me like a blue ink drop
Falling on porous paper.
Cleansing my being like a logged
Sponge from a tub of cool water
A half-halo formed on my head

So I looked around to see
If the others had seen it.
They didn't. Only me.
It seemed like I was the only
One to receive these drippings
From the Divine Desert.
I didn't know--but I felt,
Singled, Selected, and Sacred.

Do You Ever Wonder About Computers?

My course advisor was telling me a strange story about this registration. It appears that there was a great demand for Introduction to Religion, enough so that all the courses were filled in pre-registration and an additional section was added. During registration three additional students were added to one section (grand total 30) and 39 were turned away.

The first day of classes turned out to be rather traumatic for the department. There were only three students in the class. Expecting a great cry and the professor waited for the sounds of fifty-four feet looking for the classroom. Three days later the department began adding some of the 39 students that were turned away and looking for papers. My course advisor and myself were commenting on the possibility of a mass grave in the middle of the drillfield when a student knocked on the door.

"Sir?"

"Yes."

I was signed up for Introduction to Religion, but the computer registered me for Computer Programming... and, uh, it also gave me the wrong room number for the class...and...uh...

The recent choice of Lieutenant General Curtis LeMay as Governor Wallace's running mate has amply demonstrated what the New Left has been saying for years. Namely that collusion exists between white racists and the military officer clique to dominate and bastardize our society. How maybe you'll believe us.

PANEM ET LUDOS

As the new academic year commences the administration and other reactionary campus elements once again have released their customary barrage against student activists and other members on the university black list. Designed to discredit a rising feeling of responsible student power, their action marks the start of another season of that ever popular campus sport--witch hunting.

The usual method of play consists of subtle and indirect pressures designed to preserve the high level of student complacency. The importance that the administration places on maintaining a thoroughly material system cannot be over emphasized when it is pointed out that the school spent over one million dollars last year on athletics, orchestra, and a plethora of clubs and organizations of questionable value. Now, as if this weren't enough, the school is the proud owner of the world's largest collection of genuine toy "sojers." Now perhaps it isn't all as useless as it seems, after all, you could say that Tech has the best dressed bunch of milkmen anywhere.

Seriously however, there may be many worthwhile organizations on campus; but sarcasm is excusable when you realize the actual extent of the "panem et ludos" atmosphere present on most of our supposedly first rate universities. Why? Why the circus atmosphere?

The answer is control. In the unbalanced world of contemporary education the student is pre-judged incapable of rational thought and forfeit of all right to self-determination. In the administration's view the complacent and preoccupied student is the most malleable and easiest to dominate; any attempt at student self-rule is suspect and misunderstood. Is it any wonder then that there has been significant unrest and uncertainty on many American campuses? It is a wonder that there hasn't been trouble approaching that in Mexico. Quiet will return to the campus only when the school authorities realize that students are not content to be arbitrarily dictated to. Today's student is a much more sophisticated creature than most are willing to admit. All we are asking is the chance to conduct our lives as we see fit. But if you are determined to thwart us, remember: you need us a lot more than we need you.
