

Lambda Rising NEWS

Published by Lambda Rising Bookstores, the bookstores that celebrate the Gay and Lesbian experience.

"Wow! I never thought I'd have a Lambda Rising in my own bedroom!"

That was the reaction of one of the first visitors to the new Lambda Rising Online Bookstore which opened its virtual doors on America Online (AOL) on June 20. She was sitting in her bedroom with her portable computer on her lap, browsing the latest book descriptions, and placing an order right over her modem.

AOL has over three million members, making it the largest and fastest growing online computer service of its type. "AOL is the most gay-supportive and gay-friendly of all the commercial telecom services," said Deacon Maccubbin, President of Lambda Rising. "Their Gay and Lesbian Community Forum is one of the largest on the system, with thousands of free files and tens of thousands of messages posted." In the first week of operation, over 10,000 people visited Lambda Rising Online.

Customers with a computer (either Macintosh or Windows) and a modem can access AOL from anywhere in the U.S. or Canada. Later this year, the company is expected to expand to Europe and Japan.

AOL offers a fully-graphical interface, and is easy to use and easy to navigate. The Lambda Rising Online Bookstore features an online catalog of books (arranged by title, author, and subject), videos, music, and gifts. There is also a search option to help in locating particular items. When a customer browses the online store and finds a title of interest, they can simply click on the title to get a full description of the item along with a color image of the book or video cover. Should they decide to make a purchase, a few simple mouse clicks is all it takes.

But the fun doesn't stop there! We also have a full message board where users can post notices and announcements, carry on discussions about their favorite authors, or post inquiries about books, movies, and music.

And there's the Rainbow Cafe, a real-time conference room where lesbian and gay authors can chat with

"SISTER AND BROTHER" SETS THE TONE FOR 7TH ANNUAL Gay and Lesbian Book Awards

Inclusiveness is the theme of this year's Lambda Literary Award winners. Many of the books selected this year defy a breakdown into either gay male or lesbian, or, for that matter, into simple dichotomies of gay and straight.

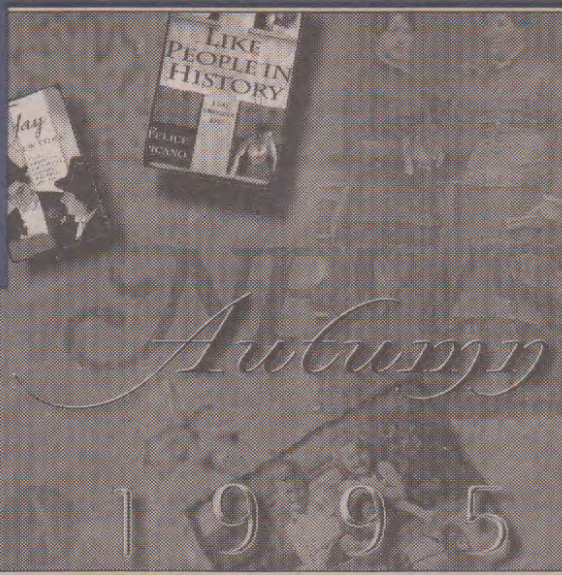

The winner for Gay Biography/Autobiography, for instance, is My Own Country by Abraham Verghese, who is not a gay man, but rather a straight doctor who treated people with AIDS in rural Tennessee. Yet if Verghese's story is not that of a gay man, he relates with remarkable sympathy the lives of gay men returning home. And in the course of his experience in the Tennessee clinic, Verghese comes to see himself as having much in common with the men he treats: a foreigner, he is an outsider to the culture just as they are; even the stigma of AIDS, he believes, comes to be associated with himself as he becomes known in the community for treating the disease. Similarly, John Berendt's runaway best seller, Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil, sees gay men (and transvestites) as woven into the fabric of the whole society of Savannah, Georgia.

It is the connections between lesbians and gay men that unite other winners. That, indeed, is the theme of Nonfiction Anthology award winner Sister and Brother (Joan Nestle and John Preston, ed.), and it is an important thread in Lesbian fiction winner Gifts of the Body (by Rebecca Brown) which, like My Own Country traces an AIDS caregiver's connections to the people she helps, in Nancy Andrews' Family, a wonderful photo album of both lesbians and gay men, and the Children/Young Adult winner, Am I Blue?, stories for young adults by both lesbian and gay (and non-gay) authors.

This year's LLA winners also indicate that the community is not a shifting collection of one-shot won-

Patricia Morrisroe

Mapplethorpe's photos were alternately praised for their uncompromising honesty, and condemned for their explicit sexuality. Morrisroe chronicles the artist's troubled childhood, his intense relationship with Patti Smith, his affair with Sam Wagstaff, his obsession with New York's sexual underworld, his emergence on the international photography scene, and his attempts to reap the benefits of fame before succumbing to AIDS. Her biography material from interviews with Mapplethorpe and with nearly 300 people who knew him from different periods of his life.

ders, but is nurturing a steadily maturing body of work. Winners Dorothy Allison, Alan Hollinghurst, Marilyn Hacker, Thom Gunn, Ellen Hart, Lillian Faderman, Melissa Scott and Tony Kushner are all Lammy veterans, having had earlier books that were either finalists or winners. Lesbian Studies winner Dorothy Allison and Gay Men's novel winner Alan Hollinghurst both garnered Lammy's at the first Awards ceremony in 1989.

Finally, this was the year the Lammys went international. For the first time Canadian books were eligible for a Lambda Literary Award, and a Canadian book, Her Tongue on My Theory, by the Kiss & Tell lesbian writers collective (published by Vancouver's Press Gang), is this year's small press winner. It's a fitting reminder both of the vibrant lesbian and gay publishing community north of the border, and of the fact that gay and lesbian books have become an international business.

The Publisher's Service Award, and the Editor's Choice Award, which are chosen outside the Lambda Literary Award judging process, went to Barbara Smith, for her work in founding, with Audre Lorde, Kitchen Table Press, and to Mab Segrest for her "mixed genre" Memoir of a Race Traitor. In accepting her Editor's Choice Award Segrest surmised that her account of organizing communal support against a homegrown "Nazi movement" in the mid-1980s was eerily prophetic of "what has erupted nationally since the Oklahoma City bombings."

BARREL FEVER

David Sedaris

A volume of work that brandishes a form of humor which is more likely to evoke a smirk from the reader rather than a smile. In this subtle yet witty first collection, Sedaris offers a humor and satire that is poignant, contemporary, and sometimes downright mean. His stories walk a thin line between reportage of ordinary lives and discreet yet cutting judgments of their incessant banalities. Sedaris is a commentator on NPR and a gay author. Several of the stories relate gay issues.

THE WEEKEND

Peter Cameron

On a midsummer weekend in a country house in upstate New York, three friends gather on the anniversary of the death of a man who was related to them all by either blood or love. Their idyll is disturbed by the presence of two outsiders: a faux Italian dinner guest and a young gay man who is now involved with the dead man's lover. A swim in a river, a dinner al fresco, a walk in the woods at night all become charged with the tensions of trying to recapture something lost.

DEALING WITH YOUR FEELINGS

Dallas Denny, M.A.

A guide to coming out for persons with gender dysphoria, put out by American Educational Gender Information Service. Many transgendered persons are quite comfortable with themselves, but such confidence is not gained overnight. Usually it is a slow and painful process of self-exploration which can last years. The purpose of this booklet is to help deal with feelings of guilt or insecurity, to explore and perhaps seek help for their gender dysphoria, and to make the expression of their gender identity a part of their existence.

SAILORS AND SEXUAL IDENTITY

CROSSING THE LINE BETWEEN "STRAIGHT" AND "GAY"

IN THE U.S. NAVY

Steven Zeeland

The conversations in this book reveal how known gay and straight men can and do get along in the sexually charged atmosphere of barracks and shipboard life. The stories recounted here in vivid detail call into question the imagined boundaries between gay and straight, homosexual and homosocial, and suggest a secret Pentagon motivation for the gay ban: to protect homoerotic military rituals, buddy love, and covert military homosexuality from the taint of sexual suspicion.

Biography

Walker Evans

WALKER EVANS A BIOGRAPHY

Belinda Rathbone
Walker Evans was a man in love with Americana, a sensualist, a junk collector, a connoisseur, and a perpetual weekend guest. His friendships with Hart Crane, Lincoln Kirstein, and James Agee drew him into the promiscuous New York literary scene in the 1930s, 40s and 50s, and his fierce independence from contemporaries such as Ansel Adams and Margaret Bourke-White brought him notoriety among photographers.

HIDDEN IN THE BLOOD A PERSONAL INVESTIGATION OF AIDS IN THE YUCATAN

Carter Wilson

A dramatic personal account of the resilient citizens of Merida—gay, straight, and bisexual. A glimpse of the AIDS crisis on the Mexican front, this book explores the daily lives of the staff and patients at a clinic where three quarters of the HIV+ people in the region are treated. This book also explores the social context of AIDS in the Yucatan, telling the stories of homosexual men profoundly worried for their own survival and privacy, and of the young men and women the crisis has moved to become activists.

SEEKING FAIR TREATMENT FROM THE AIDS EPIDEMIC TO NATIONAL HEALTH CARE REFORM

Norma Daniels

Would health care reform improve the lives of HIV patients when so many of those affected belong to groups that are traditionally discriminated against—gays, drug abusers, members of minority groups, women, and children? Daniels guides the reader through the complex maze of conflicting claims made by insurers, activists, and the medical community. He shows that AIDS activists' long fight for better treatment and access to care is not the fight of a desperate and isolated group, but a fight for exactly the things all of us need in our national health care system.

MY OWN COUNTRY A DOCTOR'S STORY

Abraham Verghese

An unforgettable document of the arrival of AIDS into the fabric of a small town. Johnson City, Tennessee never thought their lives would be touched by AIDS until a young man returns home very sick to face his family. A factory worker must confront her husband's AIDS diagnosis and her own HIV status. A religious man infected by a transfusion works with his wife to keep it secret from their church and children. Out of this doctor's experience comes a startling but uplifting portrait of the American heartland as it confronts and surmounts its deepest prejudices and fears.

EX-GAYS? THERE ARE NONE! WHAT IT MEANS TO BE A NEW CREATURE IN CHRIST

Sylvia Pennington

"I know about ex-gay ministries as my involvement with the gay community began in the mid-sixties as part of a work to 'heal' homosexuals of their homosexuality. Through 25 years of observing the 'ex-gay' process, I am convinced that, in reality, there are no ex-gays. I hope the lives and ministries depicted in this book will enable you to see that more damage than help is done to gay people as they try not to be gay." — the author

KNOW MY NAME A GAY LIBERATION THEOLOGY

Richard Cleaver

The place of gay men and women in the community of faith has become one of the most divisive debates in the church today. Cleaver offers a gay reading of scripture, but one that is spiritually-challenging to all readers. He interweaves biblical reflections with historical, social, political, and personal commentary. He discusses "coming out," the development of class consciousness as members of an oppressed group, and solidarity with other groups.

WRESTLING WITH THE ANGEL

FAITH AND RELIGION IN THE
LIVES OF GAY MEN
Brian Bouldrey, ed.

Few have struggled more poignantly for religious acceptance than the gay man, and in these moving essays, gay men of various faiths echo all the doubts and hopes of this nation of soul-searchers. In vivid descriptions of their paths toward spiritual and sexual identity, such contributors as Lev Raphael, Alfred Corn, Andrew Holleran, Frank Browning, David Plante, Michael Nava, Brad Gooch, Fenton Johnson, and Felice Picano reveal the joys and frustrations of communicating with one's excommunicator, or, in some cases, of constructing a faith of one's own.

THE COOK AND THE CARPENTER

Arnold, June

In New York City, women from almost every local women's liberation group took over an abandoned building on New Year's Eve, 1970. They renovated it to feed, clothe, shelter, and educate women in need. The takeover was a huge success. Thirteen days later, police stormed the building, expelled the women, and ended the action. The city then put a parking lot on the site. Arnold was one of the original planners and an active participant in this episode. When she got out of jail, she went home and wrote this novel about what happened.

MEDITATIONS ON

MYTH AND METAPHOR
Jamaica Highbwater

This book is about the vastly different ways artists have found through the labyrinth of dreams. The author discusses such subjects as myth discovery, imagination as political power, homosexuality as metaphor, cultural piracy, the body as metaphor, the death of the sacred, iconography as destiny, the reinvention of the past, and play as mythology.

SPEAKING FOR VICE

HOMOSEXUALITY IN THE ART OF
CHARLES DEMUTH, MARSDEN
HARTLEY, AND THE FIRST AMERICAN
AVANT-GARDE

Jonathan Weinberg

A pioneering exploration of homosexuality in the art of Demuth and Hartley and the first American Avant-garde, showing the many ways in which the homosexual culture of the years between the wars informs their work and that of other artists. This book also grapples with the problems of identifying homosexual content in a work of art, showing how the artist often used sexual codes to communicate their sexuality to their subculture. Includes 82 color illustrations.

Various Artists

A project in memory of loved ones lost to AIDS. This album brings together the finest keyboard talents in contemporary instrumental music today, and includes performances by artists with AIDS, those whose careers were cut short by AIDS, and by artists whose music was inspired by their emotional reaction to the disease. A portion of the producers' proceeds go to LIFEbeat, the music industry's organization fighting AIDS.
