1. The first step in the process of developing a new product is to identify a market need. This can be done through market research, which involves gathering information about the target market and its needs. Once a market need has been identified, the next step is to develop a concept for a new product that meets this need. This concept should be based on the market research and should take into account the needs and preferences of the target market. The concept should also be feasible, meaning that it can be developed and marketed within the company's resources and capabilities. Once a concept has been developed, the next step is to create a prototype of the product. This prototype should be used to test the concept and to gather feedback from potential customers. Finally, once the concept has been tested and refined, the company can move forward with developing and marketing the new product.

RESEARCH FINDINGS (20-04-04-0401) The new research provides an opportunity to understand the factors that influence the adoption of new technologies. The survey found that the most common reasons for not adopting a new technology were lack of time, lack of money, and lack of knowledge. The study also found that the most common reasons for adopting a new technology were the benefits of the technology, the ease of use, and the support provided by the vendor.
